

Project/Product Manager - Internship

Do you want to get first hand experience in what it means to build a business? Are you passionate about sustainable living, digital transformations and responsible business models? Then this is the internship opportunity for you.

Your role:

- You will operate at the heart of our business and will get involved in developing all key areas such as product design and management, launch, marketing, customer and partner relations, etc.
- Manage content creation and product delivery, technology development and marketing campaigns
- Deal with social media & community management
- Provide operational support on critical processes

Your profile:

- This role fits someone who is currently pursuing a university degree (ideally in business administration, IT or related areas but all areas will be considered) and can commit at least 20 hours a week
- Self-starter and proactive, with excellent communication and organisational skills
- No prior work experience required but resourcefulness and willingness to learn new skills is essential
- Keen interest in start-ups, technology and sustainable living
- 100% digitally native
- Fluent spoken and written Estonian and English is a must

This is an opportunity to:

- Gather first-hand start-up experience in launching a new business in the food technology sector
- Work remotely and independently and collaborate with mentors who have experience in launching similar ventures

To apply, send your CV to recruitment@foodangels.org.

About us:

Food Angels is a food ordering service with a difference. Order delicious meals for less and fight food waste in the process. See www.foodangels.org for more information.