Dr Ingrid Granne is a principle investigator in the Nuffield Department of Obstetrics and Gynaecology in the University of Oxford and Honorary Consultant Gynaecologist and Sub-Specialist in Reproductive Medicine and Surgery. She is the lead for the Recurrent Miscarriage and Early Pregnancy at Oxford University Hospitals NHS Trust. Research stems from this clinical interest, key themes are to understand endometrial factors in recurrent miscarriage and sub-fertility, the interactions between extracellular vesicles in early reproductive processes and understanding the impact of pregnancy on long-term health.