Dr Jen Southcombe
I am a reproductive immunologist working in the Nuffield Department of Obstetrics and Gynaecology in the University of Oxford, aiming to further understand the nature of uterine immunity pre-pregnancy and immunological events that unfold in early pregnancy. My research specifically focuses on endometrial immune cells in recurrent miscarriage and paternal and maternal factors that influence endometrial cells.