New #research published by IZA - Institute of Labor Economics included analysis of our survey data (2014-19).

Mihails Hazans (Latvijas Universitate), Jaan Masso (University of Tartu) and Botolf Maurseth (Handelshøyskolen BI) assessed the Schwartz human values scale section of our #survey and employment #data.

They compared responses to the human values scale from those in supervisory roles with employees in nine countries.

Do workers' values matter for selection into supervisory jobs?
